Revision 295536d1 - 08/10/2016 11:31 AM - Dominic Cleal

fixes #15787 - update shoulda-matchers to 3.x

Contains changes to models for the new behaviour of the uniqueness validation test, which saves a model with one value and then attempts to validate a second.

NestedAncestryCommon's validation now doesn't fail when the specified ancestry/parent_id is non-existent (shoulda-matchers generates an invalid value).

Validations of title on NestedAncestryCommon models have been removed as it's derived automatically from the name field, and can't be tested independently of the model name. This in any case was a duplicate validation of the name which is scoped to ancestry.

Host::Base has #dup implemented so the copied model has a valid primary interface for #name= to work, matching the behaviour of #initialize.
