Description Cloned from https://bugzilla.redhat.com/show_bug.cgi?id=1597081 Description of problem: When a user has rolled-up/folded subscriptions and clicks the 'select all' checkbox, those rolled up subscriptions are not automatically selected. If they are unrolled, and user re-clicks, these get selected. If a user wants to "Select All", in this case, it is presumable that each item within a folded subscription is desired to be selected as well. Version-Release number of selected component (if applicable): 6.4.0 snap 10 How reproducible: Steps to Reproduce: 1. Upload a manifest which has folded subscriptions. Examples of these subscriptions might be: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Red Hat Enterprise Linux Developer Support, Enterprise• Red Hat Enterprise Linux Developer Support, Professional 2. Navigate to the Subscriptions page; assure said subscriptions are "rolled-up" (the expando arrow is facing 'down') 3. Click the Select All checkbox. 4. Expand the rolled up subscription 5. View results Actual results: It is clear the rolled up subscriptions are not checked. Upon doing this, the Select All checkbox does become unmarked. Clicking it again will select the now-unfolded subscriptions Expected results: I would think that if user Selects All, it would logically mark all child subscriptions as selected, even if they are folded. More to the point (and perhaps this should be a separate BZ), anytime a parent subscription's checkbox is selected, either manually or via Select All, the child subscriptions should get selected as well.
