Description

Package https://yum.theforeman.org/client/1.20/el7/x86_64/foreman-client-release-1.20.2-1.el7.noarch.rpm sets up a GPG public key, but it is not the key used to sign the packages found in that repository. After some trial and error, I found the correct key, D0B17F13, at https://github.com/theforeman/foreman-packaging/blob/rpm/1.20/packages/katello-3.9/katello-repos-3.9/RPM-GPG-KEY-katello-2015

Fixes #26278 - GPG sign client repositories

This enforces that the client repo is GPG signed with the same key as the main foreman repository.

History

#1 - 03/07/2019 10:15 PM - Ewoud Kohl van Wijngaarden

At this point we're not signing the client packages repository. The packages in that repository are signed by some key, which for those packages happens to be that key. There is however no guarantee and we could include updates packages which might not be signed or signed with a different key.
