Description
Db column products.cdn_import_success is left over legacy code that was being used from the days when importing manifest also created repositories in pulp and candlepin.
After we moved to the better way of importing reposets this code is no longer used. Nothing is referring to this, so removing this column.

fixes #4714 - Removing traces of unused cdn_import_success code

This db column is left over legacy code that was being used from the days when importing manifest also created repositories in pulp and candlepin.

After we moved to the better way of importing reposets this code became dead code. Nothing was referring to this, so removing this.
