Description

If I delete version 1 and then publish again, the new version should be #2 and not 1.

We need to keep track of the latest version number.

Fixes #5243 - Store the content view next version

When destroying content view versions, we were keep track of the last version number so we'd publish using version numbers that were deleted. With this change, we'll store the next version number, increment it, and use it for new versions.
