Description
Cloned from https://bugzilla.redhat.com/show_bug.cgi?id=1028098
Description of problem: When user is creating a yum/puppet repo and accidentally chooses something from the GPG key box, s/he is unable to "deselect" it since the 'blank' line in the dropdown disappears.
Version-Release number of selected component (if applicable):
How reproducible:
Steps to Reproduce: 1. Create a GPG key 2. Attempt to create a repo (either yum or puppet); click on the GPG key dropdown, noting the blank line (nothing selected) and the GPG key you uploaded/created. 3. Select the GPG key. 4. Click dropdown again and try to "deselect" it.
Actual results: No blank option, user can't deselect
Expected results: User should always have option to clear a gpg key they accidentally were setting up.
Additional info: Workarounds: Cancel/reload Edit the repo once created and fix the GPG key there, where we again have the blank option.
