Description

I set the loglevel in a smartproxy that only does "puppet" to "debug", and the logfile output did not display anything other than the normal INFOrmational messages during a puppet class import run.

I presume this is a bug, and that there should actually be some debug logs along the lines of "parsing class X in puppetenv Y" or something as a result of setting the loglevel to debug?

History

#1 - 07/10/2014 03:08 AM - Dominic Cleal

- Project changed from Foreman to Smart Proxy

- Subject changed from foreman-proxy ignores loglevel setting to Puppet module needs debug logging

- Category changed from Smart Proxy to Puppet

It's simply that the Puppet module in the proxy hasn't got a single line of debug, though it indeed should!

#2 - 12/03/2014 11:59 PM - enzo wang

I met the same bug at foreman-proxy version 1.7.0.
No useful lines even I set it to DEBUG.
The only lines can be observed are like:
